

Seminar conclusions

- n There is a lot of work a head of us but with the commitment and enthusiasm shown in this room today I am sure that we will arrive where we want
- n The task is huge, working in isolation will not allow bridging the gap. It is essential that we join effort at European scale to progress, the effort that our competitors are putting in this technologies world-wide invites to do so.
- n All the projects presented today have to work hard as self-standing actions. However, a coordination effort from all of you will multiply your credibility when it come to presenting and validating results.
- n The visibility of the projects will be enhanced through a sound harmonised and joint effort regarding communication.
- n The European Commission is keen to see emerging from these projects a European Partnership, « Hydrogen for Transport » that will materialise the credibility and visibility of the action
- n Only with facts (your demonstrations), credibility and visibility we will gain the necessary momentum to take the following steps, including the preparation of very large scale demonstration projects « lighthouse projects »
